ROMANY OF THE BBC Information appeal. Can you help? Romany broadcasted from the old BBC Piccadilly Studios from 1932 to 1943. The Revd G Bramwell Evens, better known to millions of radio fans and book lovers as “Romany of the BBC” was Britain’s first major broadcasting naturalist and influenced future broadcasters Sir David Attenborough and David Bellamy, as well as millions of adults and children in the 1930s and early 40s. Any information, photos and other material would be welcomed by John Thorpe a local researcher with an interest in Romany. All information is potentially useful.
